VoltVibe Comprehensive Transit Insurance & Shipping Claims Policy

1. Scope of Coverage & Carrier Logistics

All shipments dispatched from VoltVibe centralized distribution networks are subject to the terms of this Comprehensive Transit Insurance and Shipping Claims Policy. Our primary logistics partners include DHL Express, FedEx Commercial, and United Parcel Service (UPS). The coverage described herein provides protective indemnity against physical loss, damage, theft, or non-delivery during the active transit cycle. The active transit cycle begins the moment the parcel is scanned into the carrier's possession at the originating facility and terminates upon verified delivery or carrier abandonment at the destination address. Note that this policy operates independently from standard product warranties (such as the VoltVibe 12-Month Limited Manufacturer Warranty outlined in doc_01_standard_warranty.pdf) and focuses exclusively on physical hazards encountered during transport.

By default, all orders processed through the VoltVibe online store are automatically enrolled in the Basic Transit Protection program at checkout. The standard fee for this protection is calculated at 1.5% of the total cart subtotal (after promotional discounts and before taxes or shipping rates). Customers have the option to manually opt out of this transit protection by unchecking the 'Transit Insurance' box during final checkout confirmation. Opting out of the protection program relieves VoltVibe of all liability for loss or damage during transit, and the buyer assumes all risks of transit. For orders exceeding $1,000 USD, enrollment in Premium Signature Protection is mandatory and cannot be waived, as detailed in Section 4.2.

Our logistics team monitors all carrier transit corridors to identify potential bottlenecks. If a package is rerouted due to natural disasters, labor disputes, or transportation strikes, the active transit cycle is extended automatically to cover the additional transit duration. However, this extension does not apply to shipments that are delayed at international borders due to customer documentation failures.

VoltVibe reserves the right to select the primary carrier for all standard shipping orders. If a customer requests a specific carrier at checkout, any additional shipping surcharges will be billed directly to the customer and are non-refundable, even if a transit claim is subsequently approved.

2. Geographic Exclusions and Carrier-Specific Limitations

While transit insurance is generally applicable worldwide, specific geographic regions are excluded from coverage due to high historical rates of loss, customs impoundments, or courier infrastructure deficits. No transit claims will be approved, processed, or paid for delivery destinations located within: Central America, South America, North Africa, and conflict-affected regions. Additionally, shipments handled by regional third-party postal services after initial delivery to national border hubs are excluded from coverage. In these cases, liability transfers to the buyer once the package is documented as received at the carrier's primary international gateway. For standard domestic shipments, coverage is provided for all 50 US states, though P.O. Box deliveries represent a unique exception (see Section 7).

International transit corridors to Eastern Europe and Central Asia are subject to strict customs verification. If a shipment is seized or delayed by foreign customs due to suspected regulatory non-compliance of the imported goods, the transit insurance policy is immediately suspended. It is the importer's responsibility to verify that the items ordered are compliant with local import restrictions. Furthermore, customs clearance fees, import duties, and VAT are not covered by this policy and must be paid directly to the local taxing authority in accordance with doc_07_customs_duties.pdf.

Carrier-specific limitations apply to remote areas. For example, DHL Express does not support signature-required delivery in certain remote islands. In these cases, if the customer requests signature delivery, VoltVibe will attempt to reroute the package via FedEx. If no signature-capable carrier is available for the destination, the transaction will be canceled and a full refund issued.

For shipments destined for US military bases (APO/FPO/DPO), transit insurance terminates the moment the package is handed over to the Military Postal Service Agency (MPSA). Any subsequent loss, theft, or damage occurring within the military postal network is outside the scope of this policy, and claims must be filed directly with the MPSA.

3. Domestic vs. International Processing Pathways

Transit claims are routed through two separate administrative tracks. Domestic claims (within the US and Canada) are processed internally by the VoltVibe Claims Desk, with typical resolution timelines ranging between 3 to 5 business days from documentation receipt. In contrast, international claims involving multi-jurisdictional transport require joint investigation with the primary carrier's international liaison. These international claims are subject to a mandatory 30-day monitoring period to allow for customs clearance verification before any payout or replacement can be authorized. If a package is held by international customs authorities due to regulatory non-compliance or unpaid duties (as detailed in doc_07_customs_duties.pdf), the transit insurance is rendered null and void, and the customer must resolve the clearance issue directly with local customs agents.

Domestic claims processing requires the customer to submit a signed Declaration of Non-Receipt. This document is a legally binding statement verifying that the package was not received. Once submitted, our claims team will review carrier GPS logs to verify the exact coordinates of the delivery vehicle at the time of the marked delivery. If the GPS coordinates match the customer's delivery address within a 15-meter tolerance, the claim will be flagged for fraud investigation, and a physical inspection of the property may be requested.

International claims are often delayed due to time zone differences and varying carrier processing speeds. VoltVibe will provide weekly updates to the customer via email regarding the status of the carrier's investigation. If the carrier confirms the loss of the package before the end of the 30-day monitoring period, VoltVibe will expedite the replacement shipment. However, if the carrier reports that the package is still in transit, no replacement will be authorized until the 30-day window has fully expired.

In the event of a disputed delivery in Canada, the claim must be co-signed by the recipient and a witness if the total order value exceeds $250 CAD. This requirement is in place to comply with Canadian insurance underwriting regulations.

4. Claim Filing Windows and Requirements

To ensure proper investigation and verification, claims must be filed within strict reporting windows. Filing windows depend on the category of the claim (Loss in Transit, Damaged Package, or Stolen Package). Failure to submit a claim within the designated period will result in immediate and final rejection of the claim without exception. All claims must be accompanied by the standard documentation package, which includes: the original order confirmation number, carrier tracking details, a signed declaration of non-receipt (for lost/stolen packages), and photographic evidence (for damaged packages).

A package is legally defined as 'Lost in Transit' when carrier tracking records show no scan activity for a prolonged period. The timeline for filing a Lost in Transit claim is conditional on the shipping tier selected at checkout:

- Standard Economy Shipping: Claims may only be filed after 14 calendar days of zero scan updates, and no later than 30 calendar days from the date of shipment.
- Express and Priority Shipping: Claims may only be filed after 7 calendar days of zero scan updates, and no later than 21 calendar days from the date of shipment.
- International Priority Shipping: Claims may only be filed after 21 calendar days of zero scan updates, and no later than 45 calendar days from the date of shipment.

For packages marked as 'delivered' by the carrier but arrived damaged, the customer must submit a claim along with photographic evidence within 10 business days of delivery. For packages marked as 'delivered' but physically missing (suspected porch piracy), the standard reporting window is 14 calendar days from the delivery timestamp. However, please note the critical police reporting requirements in Section 6 which mandate actions within 7 calendar days.

All damage claims must submit photos of the outer box, inner packaging materials, and the damaged device's serial number label. If the customer discards the outer packaging before taking photographs, the claim will be immediately denied, as our team cannot verify if the damage occurred during transit or after delivery.

5. Specialized Lithium-Ion HAZMAT Rules

VoltVibe manufactures high-capacity energy storage products, including the VoltVibe Titan PowerStation and associated modular battery units. Because these items contain high-capacity lithium-ion battery packs exceeding 100 Watt-hours (Wh), their transport is strictly regulated under federal and international hazardous materials (HAZMAT) regulations. Consequently, unique reporting and safety inspection requirements apply to any transit claims involving these products.

CRITICAL RULE: Due to the safety risks associated with thermal runaway in damaged high-capacity battery units, any claim involving a shipment containing a lithium-ion battery pack with a capacity exceeding 100Wh (specifically including the VoltVibe Titan PowerStation and VoltVibe Ranger expansion packs) must be reported to the VoltVibe Safety and Logistics Compliance desk within 48 hours of carrier delivery. The customer must take high-resolution photographs of the outer packaging and the device's housing to verify that no puncture or swelling of the battery cells has occurred. Failure to report damage within this 48-hour window voids all transit insurance coverage, and the product will be treated as accepted in as-is condition. Additionally, damaged high-capacity batteries cannot be returned via standard carrier networks; they must be disposed of at an authorized local HAZMAT recycling center, and the customer must upload a signed certificate of disposal to complete their claim.

When a damaged battery is reported, VoltVibe will dispatch an electronic Safety Inspection Form. The customer must complete this form, answering questions regarding potential heat generation, leaking electrolytes, or strange odors. If a battery is determined to be unstable, standard shipping carriers are legally prohibited from transporting it. In such cases, the customer must contact local environmental services for safe disposal. VoltVibe will reimburse the customer for local disposal fees up to $50 USD upon presentation of a valid receipt alongside the HAZMAT certificate of disposal. Any attempt to mail a damaged battery back to VoltVibe without explicit written authorization from our HAZMAT safety director will result in immediate termination of the claim and a permanent ban on the customer's account.

Our safety team coordinates directly with local waste management authorities to verify the authenticity of all submitted disposal certificates. If a certificate is found to be forged or altered, the customer's account will be blacklisted, and the details will be forwarded to the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) for legal enforcement.

6. Ambiguous Rules, Exclusions, and Signature Requirements

Insurance payouts are contingent on the customer adhering to delivery protocols and the prevailing environment at the destination site. Failure to meet these obligations can result in reduced coverage or total claim denial.

Claims involving water damage to parcels left outdoors are conditional upon prevailing weather conditions at the destination. If official local meteorological logs report rainfall exceeding 0.5 inches on the day of delivery, and the customer did not choose signature-required delivery, the claim is subject to a 50% copay or complete denial at the sole discretion of the Claims Administrator. It is the customer's responsibility to provide a secure, covered drop box or shelter if signature delivery is waived. If the carrier notes indicate the parcel was placed in a secure locker or under a covered porch, any water damage claims will be denied, as it is assumed the damage occurred after the transit cycle terminated.

For all orders containing items with a total retail value exceeding $500 USD, signature-required delivery is mandatory. If a customer contacts the carrier directly to waive the signature requirement (e.g., via FedEx Delivery Manager or UPS My Choice), the transit insurance is immediately voided. VoltVibe will not honor claims for loss or theft for any shipment where the customer voluntarily bypassed the signature checkpoint.

For high-value items, carriers are instructed not to release the parcel without an adult signature; if a carrier driver releases the package without obtaining a signature, the carrier will be held solely responsible, and the customer must file a claim directly with the carrier rather than VoltVibe.

All claims involving porch piracy (theft after delivery) must be supported by an official local police report filed and submitted to VoltVibe within 7 calendar days of delivery. The report must list 'VoltVibe Shipment' and specify the package tracking number. Failure to provide the police report within this 7-day period will result in immediate denial of the claim. Note: While Section 2.2 allows up to 14 days to submit a claim, the supporting police report must be filed and dated within 7 days of the delivery timestamp to be valid. This inconsistency is intended to force prompt reporting so that local law enforcement can inspect neighbourhood surveillance cameras before footage is overwritten.

7. Multi-Unit Dwellings and P.O. Boxes

Shipments sent to multi-unit residential buildings (such as apartments, condominiums, or co-ops) are considered successfully delivered once the carrier logs confirm delivery to the primary mailroom, front desk, or building concierge. VoltVibe's transit insurance does not cover thefts occurring after the package has been accepted by building staff. It is the customer's responsibility to coordinate with their building management to ensure secure package handling.

For shipments sent to P.O. Boxes, transit insurance terminates the moment the parcel is scanned into the possession of the postal service at the destination box facility. Any subsequent loss or damage occurring within the postal locker system is outside the scope of this policy, and the customer must resolve the dispute directly with the postal carrier.

If a multi-unit dwelling has a history of high package theft rates, VoltVibe reserves the right to restrict delivery to 'hold for pickup' at a local carrier facility. If the customer refuses to pick up the package within the carrier's hold window, the shipment will be returned to our warehouse, and a 10% restocking fee will be applied to the refund, in accordance with doc_06_restocking_fees.pdf.

For shipments to student dormitories or university campus mailrooms, delivery is considered complete once the parcel is signed for by campus mail staff. VoltVibe is not liable for internal university distribution delays or losses.

8. Payout Classifications and Resolutions Matrix

Once a claim is approved, the resolution method depends on the items ordered and the promotional status of the transaction. The standard payout classifications are detailed in the matrix below:

Promotional orders, clearance items (marked as 'Grade C' or 'Outlet' in accordance with doc_09_refurbished_grades.pdf), and orders shipped using free shipping promotional codes are ineligible for cash or original payment method refunds in the event of transit loss. Resolving claims for these categories will be processed strictly via non-transferable VoltVibe Store Credit, valid for a maximum of 90 days. However, as a regional exception, customers residing in states or jurisdictions with statutory consumer protections (specifically California, Oregon, and the European Economic Area) may request a refund to their original payment method for free-shipping promotional orders, provided they submit proof of primary residency.

VoltVibe conducts random audits on transit claims. If a customer is found to have submitted conflicting information (such as stating a package was not delivered while home surveillance logs or carrier GPS coordinate delivery reports indicate otherwise), the customer's account will be permanently blacklisted. Furthermore, we report fraudulent claims to the National Insurance Crime Bureau (NICB) and local law enforcement authorities for prosecution. If a claim involves a high-value item, VoltVibe reserves the right to request a signed and notarized affidavit of loss from the customer before releasing replacement units or credit payouts.

Product Category	Standard Resolution	Alternative Payout Option
